

The college students trying out the online games while following basic instructions in English.

An English experience

AIMING to enhance students' English Language skills, Tunku Abdul Rahman College (Ktar) recently held its annual Promote English Campaign.

Organised by the institution's Extra-Mural Studies Department (EMSD), the start of the campaign coincided with the Freshie Orientation Week, making the event more meaningful for the new students.

Aside from encouraging students to speak well and write better in English, the event hoped to help students cope with their studies by improving their presentation skills and self-confidence in using the language for self-expression and social interaction.

The year-long campaign is activity-oriented so as to engage students in sharpening their skills in language learning.

Highlights included the ever-popular Dart-A-Word that widens students' vocabulary, a language camp in Pangkor Island and the English Carnival to be held later this year.

Other activities lined up for the year include scavenger hunts, public speaking workshops and creative writing.

The language learning focuses on games, songs and fun activities which stimulate and attract the students.

It has so far generated positive feedback.

"The public speaking workshop was eye-opening as I learnt how to speak more confidently, and also picked up skills required to become a better speaker" said marketing student Wong Ruby

Tan Choon Han, a Hospitality Management diploma student who attended the session on English grammar session said: "The grammar lesson was fun, interesting and easy to understand."